SOLUTIONS

Over the course of three years, the healthcare organization collaborated closely with Addison Group to support their recent EPIC implementation, which successfully went live on June 1, 2023. Recognizing the urgency and the need for high-quality contractors, Addison Group quickly tapped into its vast talent pool, providing over 50 contractors with varying levels of experience to the client. Some contractors were onboarded within weeks, while others were ready to work within a day. The contracted positions included skilled Meditech/NPR Report Writers and Developers, EDI Developers, Project Managers, and more than a dozen other crucial roles. Most contractors supported all levels of End User Devices, managed teams of over 20 employees, and displayed flexibility in their working hours. Recognizing the urgency of the implementation, Addison facilitated the hospital-required onboarding process for selected contractors, going above and beyond by providing a third-party background checker. This expedited the onboarding process significantly, reducing the time from six weeks to just one. The background checker ensured compliance with all testing requirements, including TB testing and drug screens, enabling the contractors to start working ahead of schedule while meeting all necessary medical standards.

RESULTS

The software implementation was a resounding success thanks to the partnership with Addison Group. The healthcare organization's leadership team, including the Chief Information Officer, Chief Technology Officer, Vice President, and EPIC project management team overseeing Addison's candidates, expressed satisfaction with the quality of contractors provided. Addison's placements played a pivotal role in ensuring a smooth go-live event for EPIC, cementing the success of the implementation. The contractors supplied by Addison exhibited a strong work ethic, willingly working various shifts (24/7) and overtime when needed, and remained flexible in their job duties to fulfill the engagement. Addison Group proactively understood and met these requirements, only recommending candidates who matched the organization's specific needs.
