

Addison Group rebuilds AP and Payroll teams for nonprofit government museum

A nonprofit government museum based in Washington, D.C. needed to rebuild its Accounts Payable and Payroll departments with employees who understood the nuances of the financial system they had recently implemented.

Challenge

The non-profit's Controller – a previous Addison Group candidate – knew they needed qualified talent that had experience working with a PeopleSoft plug-in. Also, due to government funding, the company needed contract workers.

Hiring contract talent would help them scale faster.

Solution

Addison Group understood the importance of finding the right candidates when rebuilding an entire AP and Payroll department. Addison Group's Washington, D.C. office was ready with a deep roster of local talent and extensive experience working with nuanced government roles. Within 24 hours of receiving the order, the client had top candidates for review. Over the span of the engagement, Addison Group placed 16 contractors in support of the client's AP and Payroll departments.
