

Addison Group talent powers energy tech company's post-acquisition success

An international energy technology company needed to quickly add talent to stabilize operations and unify their supply chain.

Challenge

The client faced major setbacks after acquiring three subsidiaries. Product quality slipped, profitability declined, and the lack of integration across the new organizations left their operations fragmented.

The client needed eight permanent professionals to rebuild structure and efficiency.

Solutions

With Addison Group's long-standing relationship and proven success with the client, they turned to us for support. Our team understood the business needs and tapped into our exclusive talent pool to deliver the right people.

We placed eight professionals across procurement, sourcing, purchasing, expediting, and supply chain teams. Within a year, the talent we placed successfully consolidated four separate supply chain departments, fully integrating the subsidiaries. As a result, the client saw profitability climb back to nearly double-digit growth.
